Annual PFP Celebration, June 4th

Upcoming 2010 Progress Award Winners Announced by Partners for Progress

ST. CHARLES COUNTY, MO --- The upcoming winners of the 2010 Progress Awards from the Partners for Progress of Greater St. Charles are being announced in preparation for Celebration 2010, the civic group's annual awards banquet scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Friday, June 4 at Lindenwood University's Spellmann Center in St. Charles.

- 2010 Health Progress Award to the City of Lake Saint Louis - for taking a leadership role by enacting St. Charles County's first city-wide smoking ban in public places
- 2010 Education Progress Award to Orchard Farm School District - for expanding its involvement in METS by launching a student robotics team and implementing Project Lead the Way
- 2010 Environment Progress Award – the cities of Cottleville and Dardenne Prairie for setting a local "green" example by developing sustainable, LEED-certified city halls
- 2010 Infrastructure Progress Award – the Missouri Department of Transportation for the completion of reconstructing I-64 and Highway 40 in St. Charles County and metro St. Louis.
- 2010 Economy Progress Award – Novus International for growing their global headquarters and high tech jobs in St. Charles County along with achieving Platinum LEED certification for their new facility in the Missouri Research Park.

"The Partners for Progress of Greater St. Charles are once again pleased to recognize leading businesses, organizations, governments, and individuals who are advancing measurable progress in St. Charles County and beyond," said PFP's President Greg Prestemon.

Founded in 2001, this prestigious group of major employers, influential business owners, and civic leaders is continuing its goal to make Greater St. Charles a nationally renowned and most livable community.
